WILD NORFOLK RANGERS

The Wild Ranger's Oath:

To become a Wild Norfolk Ranger, you must take the Wild Ranger's Oath:

> "I solemnly swear that I will take every opportunity to help make my community wilder"

Once you have taken the oath, you are officially a Wild Norfolk Ranger!

What does a Wild Norfolk Ranger do?

A Wild Ranger is a sworn ally to the wild, in their community.

A Wild Ranger will identify and celebrate the native plants growing in their community: in parks and gardens, pockets and patches, pots, plots and pavement cracks.

Wild Rangers work together to keep all local green spaces litter free, removing hazards to local wildlife.

Wild Rangers learn about native and pollinator-friendly plants, identifying them where they are found, discovering their stories, and stewarding them so they flourish.

Wild Rangers will discover and share 'recipes' that can be made from safe and abundant local plants, for food, fibre, colour and more.

Wild Rangers share local plant stories with the wider community using the Plant Story Map, encouraging everyone to care for and celebrate the wild.

Wild Rangers who have access to a growing space, which could be a private garden, allotment, or windowsill, can plant native seeds and seedlings, making our urban spaces wilder.

Wild Rangers find out how we can protect and care for wildlife at different times of the year, learning how to offer food, water and shelter safely, when these are scarce.

Wild Rangers know that the first rule of being a Wild Ranger is to talk to everyone about how great it is being a Wild Ranger!
